

Agricultural Biology Undergraduate Research Fellowship

Application for Fellowship Support

The Agricultural Biology Undergraduate Research Fellowship aims to support CSU undergraduate students to work in scientific research laboratories of their choice, in the Department of Agricultural Biology, helping students gain research experience that will prepare them for their future career endeavors.

Fellows will receive financial support for salary (hourly pay, for up to $1,500 per semester) to conduct research during the Spring semester of 2023, in labs in the Department of Agricultural Biology. Apart from learning science, the fellows will learn professional skills. These include CV building, presentation skills, leadership skills and organization skills, as well as information on pursuing graduate school.

The fellowship will be awarded on a competitive basis, so please make sure your application is complete.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR APPLICATION:
